

This is disgusting. I looked over the fact that you fined a woman for having her breast exposed (Janet Jackson), versus fining the man who committed the act of forced exposure (Justin Timberlake).

However, I am now motivated to write in light of ABC stations dropping "Saving Private Ryan" to be shown on Veterans Day for fear of FCC fines.

Enough! Our older children need to know the reality of human conflict - war, horror, sadness and consequence. You don't pull CSI, NYPD Blue or others that show female victim after another, with little discussion of the horror she suffered. But stations now feel that they can not show a fictionalized account of the sacrifice and horror suffered by American soldiers in WWII.

I know you are ashamed of yourself. Issue a PR Release NOW that this is not the intent or function of the FCC. Let ABC and other stations know that this is not the intent of this rule/guideline.

I want to protect my daughter from the horrors of the world - one of the now being ignorant, assinine federal regulation.
